What Does It Mean When Voices Are Missing From The Table

Crafting a high-performing nonprofit board requires attracting and recruiting the right mix of individuals with diverse perspectives, skills, backgrounds, and chemistry that allows for the effective execution of governance – setting direction, ensuring resources, and providing oversight. While more nonprofits are starting to realize that diversity, inclusion, and equity (DI&E)—or lack thereof—impacts the effectiveness of the board, the goal of cultivating diverse boards remains elusive to many. Join us for a candid discussion of how to move beyond the moral imperative to the business case for DI&E, including addressing the elephants in the room and analyzing what it means for your nonprofit when voices are missing from the table.
